

TRADOC

Design and Build the Future Army

To American citizens, Soldiers are their sons, daughters, relatives, neighbors, and during disaster, their lifeline. To the Nation's allies, their presence signals an American commitment during a crisis. To potential enemies of the U.S., American Soldiers represent our means to seize and hold their vital territory, control populations and resources, and deliver the decisive blow. To U.S. enemies, Soldiers impose a lethal dilemma; Soldiers complement American air and maritime power by overcoming the protective effects of terrain, weather, and noncombatants.
